STOP VICE, ORDERS CROKER AND, IF YOU ARE BACKING IT, GET

OUT OF TAMMANY.

Coroner Fitzpatrick Has a Scrap With the Chief at the Leaders' Meeting-Tim Suilivan and Engel Listen Meekly-Committee on Vice Appointed on Isidor Straus's Appeal-Croker Declares That He Never Got a Dellar of Revenue From Vice and Avows That He Looks to the Police to Stop It.

Richard Croker's farewell meeting yesterday with the Tammany Executive Committee was characterized by a remarkable scene, in which he declared that he had never taken a dollar from poolrooms or other illegal resorts, and that any district leader who had, had better get out of the organization. These declarations by Mr. Croker were taken to be in pursuance of his statement, made when Bishop Potter began his East Side vice crusade, to the effect that he would be very glad to work shoulder to shoulder with the Bishop to purify the East Side.

Mr. Croker introduced Isidor Straus, Prestdent of the Hebrew Educational Alliance, to the committee, and said that he wanted everything that Mr. Straus said listened to with the closest attention. Mr. Straus asked the district leaders to help put a stop to tenement house vice. A committee of men prominent in Tammany Hall was appointed to cooperate with any citizen or committee of citizens which undertook to better the moral condition of he East Side. Mr. Croker followed the apnointment of the committee with his declaraion that he and Tammany Hall had not been and would not be mixed up with any toleration of vice for profit.

The meetings of the Executive Committee are not open to reporters, but the members tell about them afterward, and this was a lively

Coroner Fitzpatrick, leader of the Fourth listrict, rose to explain the difficulty of keeping vice out of the tenement house district. Mr. Croker interrupted him and almost roughly denounced him as one who tried to evade restonsibility, warning him that once the people inderstood what could be done on the Fast side, they would have no use for political leaders who could not be of positive assistance to them. Mr. Fitzpatrick lost his temper when Mr. Croker said that even policemen had been solicited in the Coroner's district and retorted that more policemen had solicited women than had been solicited by women. Among the members of the Executive Committee who were present were Martin Engel and Timothy D. Sullivan. Daniel F. McMahon presided. After a resolution offered by John Carroll to the effect that the General Committee in each Assembly district should elect a member of the Tammany Hall Executive Committee on Dec. 21 had been passed, Mr. Croker introduced Mr. Straus, who, he said, would describe the evils referred to.

"I want you to give close attention to his statement," said Mr. Croker "and I want that after you have heard what he has to say you will use every effort to correct all those evils as far as it lies in your power."

"I met Mr. Croker at dinner lately," said Mr. Straus, "quite by accident, and I had a talk with him for two hours and more about conditions on the East Side. Mr. Croker asked me at that time to appear before the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall. My interest in the morals of the city as an individual is probably the same as that of every good citizen. I have the added interest that I am President of the Educational Alliance, which has headquarters at East Broadway and Jefferson street. We try to make better Americans. Our people come to us from places where the officers of the law are oppressors and we try to teach them that here the officers of the law are servants and the people are sovereigns.

"We have lately had a difficulty which threatens to poison the fountain head of righteousness. I mean the tenement-house immorality and the way in which boys and girls are subjected to every form of temptation. When I told Mr. his anxiety to come to our aid. I have nothing to do with politics in this matter, but as a Demoin my face that my party is daily supplied will money received from the vice and crime against which our Alliance is struggling. "When I told Mr Croker these things he wanted me to come here and tell you about it. Mr. Croker told me that if any Tammany Hall officeholder or any man with Tammany Hall officeholder or any man with Tammany Hall enthority could be proved suilty of harboring, helping or murturing this kind or any other kind of immorabity he would give as his best assistance in punishing the guilty and neutralizing the awful danger."

When Mr Straus finished the following resolution was offered by Lewis Nixon, chairman of the East River Bridge Commission:

"Resolved, That the chairman be empowered to appoint a committee of five to act with any citizen or committee of citizens for the purpose of investigating the moral conditions of the city and for receiving and suggesting remedies for the correction of abuses, the committee to have the full power of the organization to act."

Mr. Croker said after the appointment of the committee:

"I have nothing to add to what Mr. Strans has said because he is familiar with all the matters he has spoken to you about. I hope the entire committee will give its full strength to helping Mr. Straus in his work. We should heartily aid him in the work of crushing the ceff out.

"It is in the tenement houses. For my part I don't see how you can reach it.

"That's what I said, 'interrupted Mr. Straus.

"It is in the tenement houses. Mr. Croker bounded from his chair and walked toward the Coroner, pointing his finger at him and shaking it excitedly.

"You say you don't know what you can do?" he asked in angry tones. "What you want to do fraising his voice is to act and to try to do sounthing anyway." You can't stop it, you say? If you do nothing except tells about thing you can't do you can never stop my him you can't do you can never stop to his and will. Right will richt itself in spite of wrong. It can be rished, if this committee here goes to work with the support of the police. And now let's see whether the police can help us I want to say that the committee just appointed is as good a one as could be picked from any organization in the city."

Coroner Fitzpatrick was on his feet before Mr. Croker had finished and had tried to break in on the torrent of words that the head of the organization was pouring out. Now that he had the chance he said:

"We don't have any street walkers in the rowing from their homes to other tenements and the time, every morth more to other tenements and the time, every morth more to other tenements and the time, every morth more to other tenements and the time, every morth more to have any street walkers in the rowing from their homes to other tenements and the time, every morth more content to the protesting leader, and still menanting him here that there is no violating law and vice in my district. Such evils as there are are in the tenement houses."

Mr. Croker moved a step or two nearer to the protesting leader, and still menanting him with his finger and in even angrier tones than before, sai with his finger and in even angrier tones than before, said:

"I say to you, sir, there is soliciting in your district. Even the police have been solicited down there and they don't do anything about it. I can produce a policeman who was solicited in your district. If you don't know it. I know more about your district than you do, and I'm not in the district one-thousandth of the time than you are."

"I nove the committee adjourn." said somebody. Two or three of the other leaders were gathered around Mr. Fitzpatrick, trying to persuade him that he had said enough. He pushed them aside and as the motion to adjourn was passed, shouted above the general disturbance of the rising committee:

"There's a lot more policemen in my district who solicit than who are solicited"
"I said all I was going to say in the meeting," said Mr. Croker after it was all over. "That ought to be plain enough for anybody." A farewell dinner was given to Mr. Croker at the Democratic Club last night. Andrew Freedman had the most to do with it. The table was decorated with American Beauty roses and at the head of the table was a bronze tiger which was presented to Mr. Croker, eterday by Horgan & Slattery, the Tammany architects. About sixty guests were present at the dinner. Speeches were made by Mr. Croker, Charities Commissioner Keller, Corporation Counsel John Whalen and Andrew Freedman.

After din ar Mr. Croker was asked how Tammany intended to suppress vice in this city. He said: "We will let the General Committee attend to that. It has full power to handle the matter."

When asked if it was true, as reported, that John W. Keller had been deposed as one of the Tammany trumwrate, Mr. Croker said it was not so. He also said that he would have no statement to make to the public before he left of the true to be the said that the would have no statement to make to the public before he left. for Europe to-morrow.

"My order to all my captains, "he said, "are to suppress disorderly women and keep the streets safe for decent women and children. My office is always open. All complaints are heard, investigated and acted upon and the police are doing their heat."

Capt. Thomas of the Tenderloin precinct got wind of Mr. Croker's talk on vice to the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall last night, and about 10 o'clock he raided a "black and tan joint" at 142 West Twenty-seventh street and captured twenty-seven prisonersmen and women of all colors. This is the second raid Capt. Thomas has made since he was appointed on Jan. 14. The other place raided was the Tivoli.

dismissal to reduction to the foot of the list of Lieutenants. The President will naturally indorse the Secretary's suggestion.

Lieut. Hourigan served with distinction in the Battle of Manila Bay. He had once before been convicted of drunkenness and sentenced to a loss of five numbers, but outside of that, his record, professional and moral, was of the very highest. It was apparent from the court's comments on the case that while forced from a sense of duty to make the sentence dismissal, it believed that beyond his weakness for intoxicants, Lieut. Hourigan had all the qualifications of a splendid officer, and it therefore asked the Secretary to take into consideration his previous record and his service with Dewey at Manila.

Short of dismissal, the sentence is about the severest that has ever been imposed upon a navul officer. Lieut. Hourigan stood seventy-fifth on the list of the 300 lieutenants at the beginning of the present official year, and he therefore will lose 225 numbers, through which he must again work his way. He entered the Naval Academy from New York in 1876, and must now take his place with young men who entered the Academy a dozen years later. It is extremely likely that he will reach the retiring age before he secures command rank, and may spend the rest of his professional career in the grade of Lieutenant, which he attained in 1896, twenty years after entering the service.

Lieut. Hourigan has been ordered detached from the training slip Lancaster, now in Europe, and will proceed to the United States to be placed on waiting orders.

So far as known there are no Americans among the victims, unless John McEwen Ames, whose nationality is unknown here, but who is a resident of Paris, is one. He was only slightly injured, and has arrived at Bordeaux. The disaster was at first ascribed to the excessive speed of the train, which is variously stated to have been from sixty to seventyfive miles an hour, but it is now attributed to the sinking af the track. All traffic has been stopped.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 15.-A local train has brought here several persons who were injured in the accident. They say that the train was running from Madrid to Paris, and that the accident occurred at St. Vincent de Tirosse. between Bayonne and Dax.

The train was running at the rate of 120 kilometres an hour. Most of the passengers were in the luncheon car, when a terrible shock was felt. It seemed as though the locomotive had reared and then fallen back upon the restaurant car, crushing the kitchen and instantly killing the waiters, cook and two assistants. The fate of all the passengers is unknown. They were thrown together or against the walls of the cars. Some were struck by wreckage, some were instantly killed and some were hardly hurt. A Russian named Dombrowski had his head cut and an ear torn off, while his wife, who was sitting opposite to him, was instantly killed. The driver and fireman of the train were unhurt. The accounts given by the people who have reached here are somewhat divergent. One says there were only thirty-four passengers on the train, and that fourteen of them were killed and the remainder injured. Another says that seventeen were killed and more than thirty injured.

Rivalry Between Labor Unions Leads to Mol Rule-Factory Riddled With Bullets

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 15.—The contest between two unions of eigarmakers which has been in progress here for two weeks culminated this morning in a riot. La Resistencia, a local union with about four thousand Spanish and Cuban members, has been trying to exterminate the local branch of the International Union, composed principally of Americans, but having also Cuban members. The men had been working peaceably together for a year until two weeks ago, when an effort was made to make all the strippers join La Resistencia From this an active fight grew. Finally La Resistencia, which is practically in control of the great clear Havana cigar industry here. made a demand on the manufacturers that unless the international men joined their union they must be discharged.

Many manufacturers yielded until more than half the International membership was in the streets. La Resistencia was particularly active desperate International men, armed with shotguns, rifles and pistols, visited the factories operated by La Resistencia men and demanded they be discharged. Trouble was narrowly averted in several places, but no actual fighting occurred until the mob reached Gonzalez, Mora & Co.'s factory. When the men approached a doorkeeper fired two shots from a rife at them and immediately the mob fired a undred shots into the building, breaking every window but injuring nobody. Policemen soon dispersed the mob and there has been no further trouble. All the cigar factories in the city will be closed until the trouble is settled. Committees of business men are conferring with labor leaders and they hope to settle the Young Woman Who Has Been Unconscious Nearly a Week Restored-Her Story.

AUBURN, Me., Nov. 15 .- Miss Abbie Whitney, the young woman who has been unconscious at her home here since last Saturday night. evidently as the result of poisoning, and who in her delirium accused a Lewiston young man of giving her ice cream which "tasted bad," regained consciousness to-day. She told her story to Marshal A. A. Garleoon of this city. She implicates one young man and says that although she did not recognize two others who were involved, she is sure that she could identify them if they were brought before her.

Miss Whitney told the Marshal that she attended a dance with a girl friend at Sabbatis on Saturday evening. During an intermission she went to get a drink of water. She was seized by a young man, who dragged her outside of the building. The door was closed side of the building. The door was closed behind her and she could not return. The man, whom she did not know, drew from his pocket a pasteboard box containing ice cream. The girl says that she told the man that she did not want the ice cream, but desired to return to the hall. Upon her refusal to eat the cream the man drew a knife and said:

"Eat, or I'll kill you!"

Fearing to disobey, she tasted the cream and found it to be bitter. She then threw the box to the ground and refused to cat any more. The knife was again produced and she was again threatened if she did not eat the cream. The man then took from his coat pocket a phial and after pouring a part of its contents into the ice cream forced Miss Whitney to take two more mouthfuls.

When she absolutely refused to take more the man called to two other men some distance away, and as they approached she recognized one of them as from Lewiston. The three then seized the cirl and dragged her away. Then a struzgle took place and the girl succeeded in breaking away and returning to the hall

MET DEATH IN A CANE RUSH | WE CAN NOW CONSTRUCT THE CANAL. | BLIZZARD UP THE STATE.

SAD END OF A DAY'S SPORT AT BOS. TON INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY.

Hugh C. Moore of Rochester Was in the Middle of the Group Guarding the Cane, and the Other Students Piled in a Heap Upon Him Believed to Have Died of Suffocation.

BOSTON, Nov. 15 .- Hugh C. Moore of Rochester, N. Y., substitute centre rush of the Institute of Technology, freshmen, was killed at the South End baseball grounds during the sophomore-freshmen cane rush this afternoon. Suffocation is believed to have been the cause of death. The cane rush was preceded by the annual football game between the two classes and a cane "spree." This latter was introduced for the first event time at the institute this year. Three men from each class took part in it, but Moore was not one of those selected. He played centre yesterday. Early this morning a mob of 200 for his class during the second half of the football game and exerted himself considerably before taking part in the cane rush, which was the final event of the afternoon. Moore was one of the best known members of his class. When the term began he was a candidate for tackle on the 'Varsity eleven, and played such a good game in the practice that he was one of the last to be weeded out by the coaches. His lack of weight was against him and he turned his attention to his class eleven and had no difficulty in making the team. Yesterday he addressed his class and urged the members to be present at to-day's games. He was a member of the Y. M. C. A., and before coming to "Teck" played on the Mohegan Lake School eleven of Peekskill, N. Y. When the cane "spree" was over P. G. L. Hilken, '01, of Baltimore, the referee selected for the cane rush, brought out the "cane," a heavy oak stick with a knob at each end. In the centre of the field he formed a portion of the freshmen in a group about the cane, and as many as could get a clutch upon it did so. Meantime the sophomores who were to take part in the affair gathered at the south end of the field and formed a sort of flying wedge. The signal was given, the sophomores made a rush for the group of freshmen holding the cane, while outlying bodies of freshmen dashed forward to break up the sophomore's wedge.

When the two main bodies of students met in the centre of the field a flerce struggle began. The upper class men endeavored to break the holds of the freshmen, and in doing so blows were freely exchanged by the members of the contending parties, their object being to have more hands upon the cane when the time was called. Moore was in the middle of the group guarding the cane, and in a moment the students of both classes were piled in a heap, with the majority of the freshmen at the bottom and Moore beneath them all.

As soon as time was called, Referee Hilken ran on to the field to count the hands that had grasped the cane. When he had taken off ten men he saw that Moore was apparently badly hurt and shouted to the rest of the students in the heap to get up quickly. Moore was found to be unconscious and was borne to the side lines by his classmates, where Dr. Samuel J. Mixter, who was present at the games as a spectator, made an examination and found life to be almost extinct. Dr. Mixter sent word to call an ambulance, and according to his statement, made to THE SUN reporter to-night, the young man was practically dead when pulled out of the heap. At any rate he was dead when he reached the City Hospital. Dr. Mixter said that he was able to make only a superficial examination before the injured man was placed in the ambulance, but he expressed as his opinion that death had probif playing in the football game, combined with topsy to-morrow to determine the exact cause

This is the beginning of his seventh term. The Senator, who was escorted into the legislative hall by a committee, addressed the assembly. He said that while all political parties denied it, sectionalism was even now the bane of government and that the South would never have its dues as long as the Northern States had twothirds of the votes in the Senate.

He favored the annexation of Cuba and other such recent acquisitions and the making of States out of them for the reason that they would be free from sectionalism. He deplored the existence of the national bank system by which the banks were enabled to control the money of the country.

NOT ADOPTED BY HUNTINGTON.

Legal Standing as His Daughter. San Francisco, Nov. 15.-J. M. Bassett who was at one time in the confidence of the Southern Pacific company, makes the state-ment that Princess Hatzfeldt was never daughter, and that the only relationship she bore to him was that of niece of the first Mrs. Huntington. Bassett knows much of the affairs of the railroad and its builders, and his statement is of interest in view of the threat-the Omaha Medical College to-day in which a hundred students participated. Joe McGarty and Dale Woods, students, were seriously injured, the latter perhaps mortally, and a dozen others were more or less hurt.

The dental students and the medical students started the fight in the classroom over the question of seats. For a few minutes the fight was confined to flying wedges and the use of fists and feet, but suddenly one stalwart student seized the railing surrounding the rostrum and tore part of it away. In twenty seconds the railing had been completely "dissected."
The students were now armed with clubs of hard wood, and blood began to flow. Sealp wife by her first husband, would get the relative manner of the magnate's will by the Princes.

many stump speeches in the West for Bryan, now advises the Filipinos to lay down their arms.

"Such action," he said to-day, "I believe would be more advantageous to their cause than their hopeiess fighting. I have more faith in the success of the efforts in behalf of the Filipinos of such Republican leaders as Senator-Hoar and fiele, coursed with those of the Democrate, then in the Philippine magnetication. To methodection mean, that the people of America want 'McKinley prosecrity, and that they do not believe that Republicate intend an imperialistic policy or that they provide to permanently hold the Philippines. If the Filipinos lay down their arms the American people may be expected to grant them independence in the par future. Then, too, with peace in the Philippines there will be less necessity for a large standing army."

DOUBLE TEAM RAN AWAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Goggenheim in It but Unhurt Coachman Thrown Out and Bruised.

While returning from a drive in the upper part of the city last night, the pole team that was drawing the carriage containing Mr. and seventh street, became frightened at Seventh avenue and 113th street and started to run. Mr. Guggenhelm shouted to Mounted Poirceman "Suspender Jack" McGee and McGee pursued, but the horses had gained such a start that there was a spirited race. Just before the entrance to Central Fark was reached before the entrance to Central Park was reached the horses ran the carriage into the curbstone and Patrick Kilcoyne, the conchmen, was thrown on his head on the sidewalk. The horses were stopped by McGee within the Park. Mr. and Mrs. Guggenheim were not injured. Kilcoyne was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, where it was found that his injuries consisted merely of bruises and scratches.
